Jennifer Iannazzo, M.Ed.

Jennifer Iannazzo, M.Ed., is a seasoned educator and instructional leader with over 25 years of experience across general education, special education, curriculum development, and instructional leadership. She holds dual master's degrees in elementary education and special education from Fordham University, where she specialized in literacy instruction, as well as a bachelor's degree in education and public policy from the University of Delaware.

Jennifer began her career as an elementary school teacher in the Catholic Schools in the Archdiocese of New York, where she developed a strong foundation in student-centered instruction and faith-based education. She later transitioned into special education, teaching at Mt. Pleasant Blythedale School, where she deepened her expertise in supporting students with diverse learning needs.

Expanding her impact beyond the classroom, Jennifer moved into educational consulting, collaborating with leading organizations such as Lakeshore, Edgenuity, and Imagine Learning. In these roles, she designed curriculum and led professional development initiatives, partnering with school districts nationwide to strengthen both general and special education programs.

Jennifer then returned to the Catholic Schools in the Archdiocese of New York as Principal of St. Anthony School, where she continues to lead with a focus on academic excellence, inclusive practices, and community engagement.

In addition to her professional work, Jennifer brings a deeply personal perspective to her leadership as both an educator and the parent of a child with special needs. This experience continues to shape her empathy, advocacy, and unwavering commitment to every student she serves.

She resides in Rockland County, New York, with her husband John of 23 years and their two sons.
